

Privacy Policy

Introduction

New Life Assembly is committed to protecting your privacy and handling personal information responsibly and transparently. This policy explains how we collect, use, store, and disclose personal information in accordance with the Australian Privacy Act 1988 and the Australian Privacy Principles.

Personal Information We Collect

We may collect personal information that is reasonably necessary for our church and ministry activities. This may include your name, contact details, emergency contact information, donation records, and other information you choose to provide when participating in our services, events, programs, or communications.

How We Use Personal Information

Personal information is collected and used for purposes such as providing religious services and pastoral care, managing church activities and volunteers, communicating with you about church matters, processing donations, and meeting legal or regulatory requirements. We only use personal information for the purpose it was collected or for related purposes you would reasonably expect.

Disclosure of Information

We do not sell or rent personal information. Information may be shared with trusted service providers who assist with church operations, or where required or authorised by law. Any disclosure is limited to what is necessary and handled confidentially.

Storage and Security

We take reasonable steps to protect personal information from misuse, loss, unauthorised access, or disclosure. Information may be stored electronically or in hard copy and is accessible only to authorised church officers.

Access, Correction, and Complaints

You may request access to personal information we hold about you or ask for corrections if it is inaccurate or out of date. If you have concerns about how your information is handled, please contact us and we will seek to resolve the matter promptly. You may also contact the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner if required.

Updates to This Policy

This Privacy Policy may be updated from time to time. The current version will be available on our website or upon request.
